Knights and Dragons

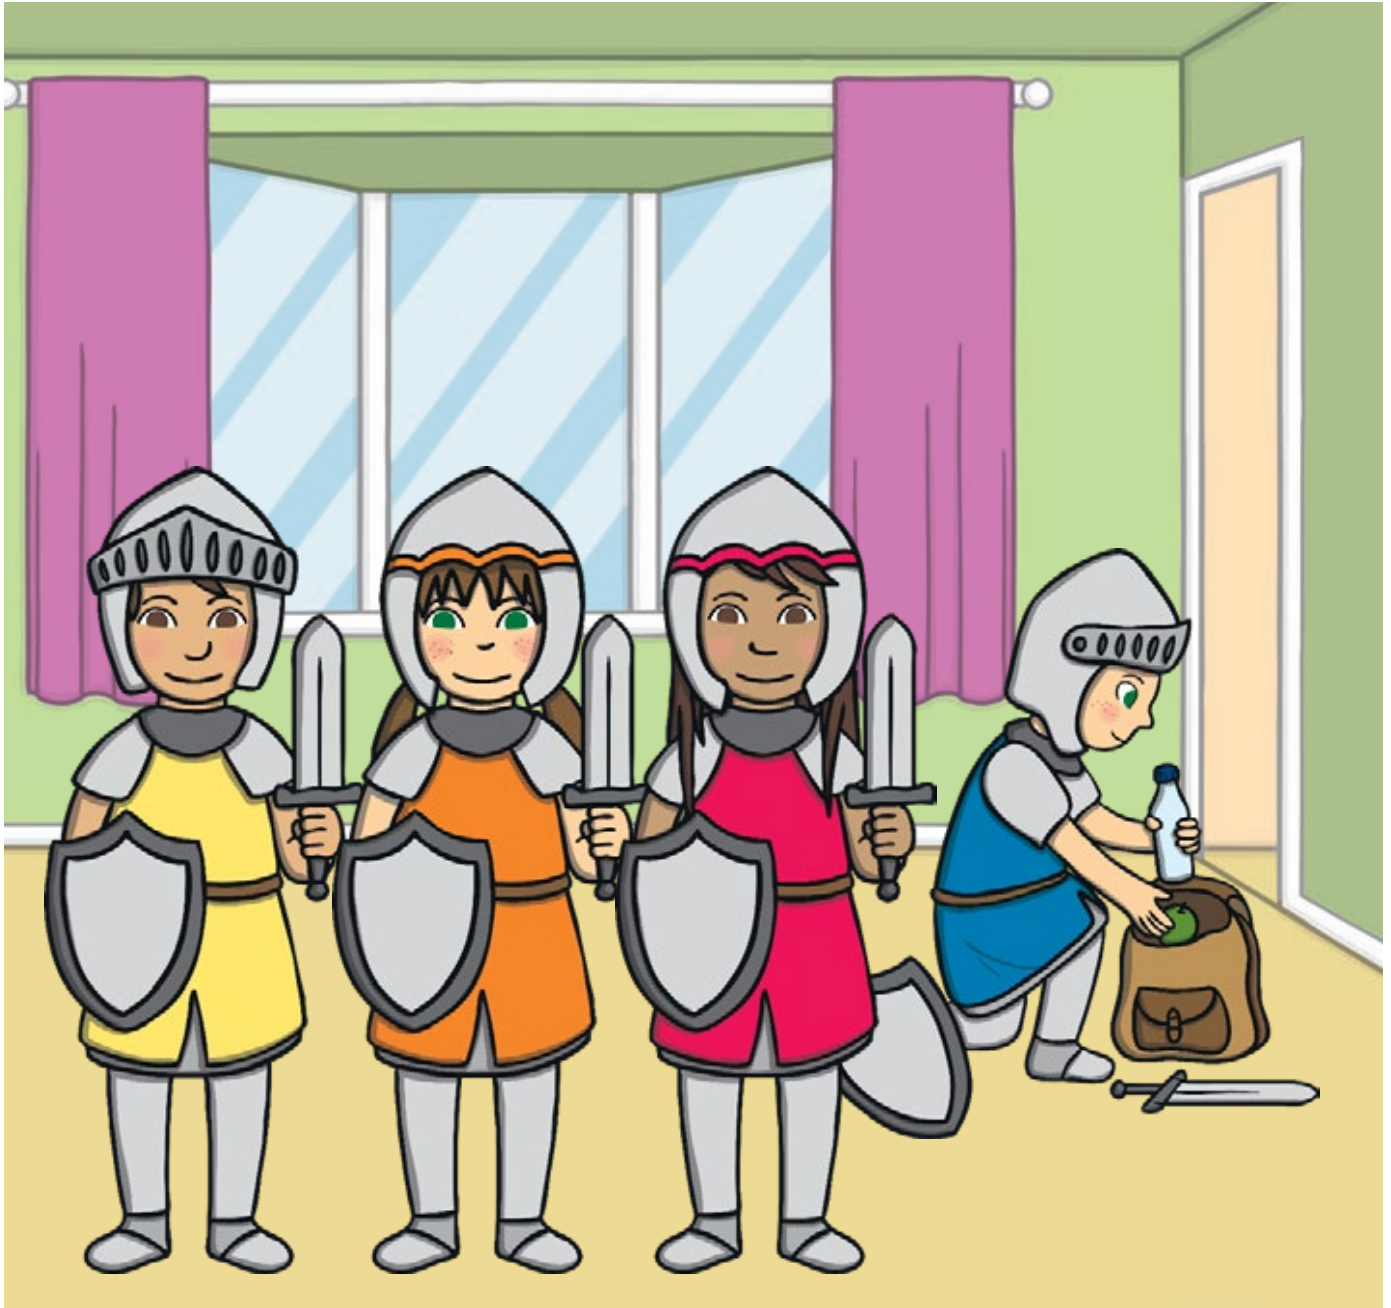

A 'Let's Read Together!' Book

Kit and Sam were bored. It was raining and they had been inside all day. “Hey, we haven’t used the magic book for a while,” said Kit. “Hmm... but where would we go?” sighed Sam.

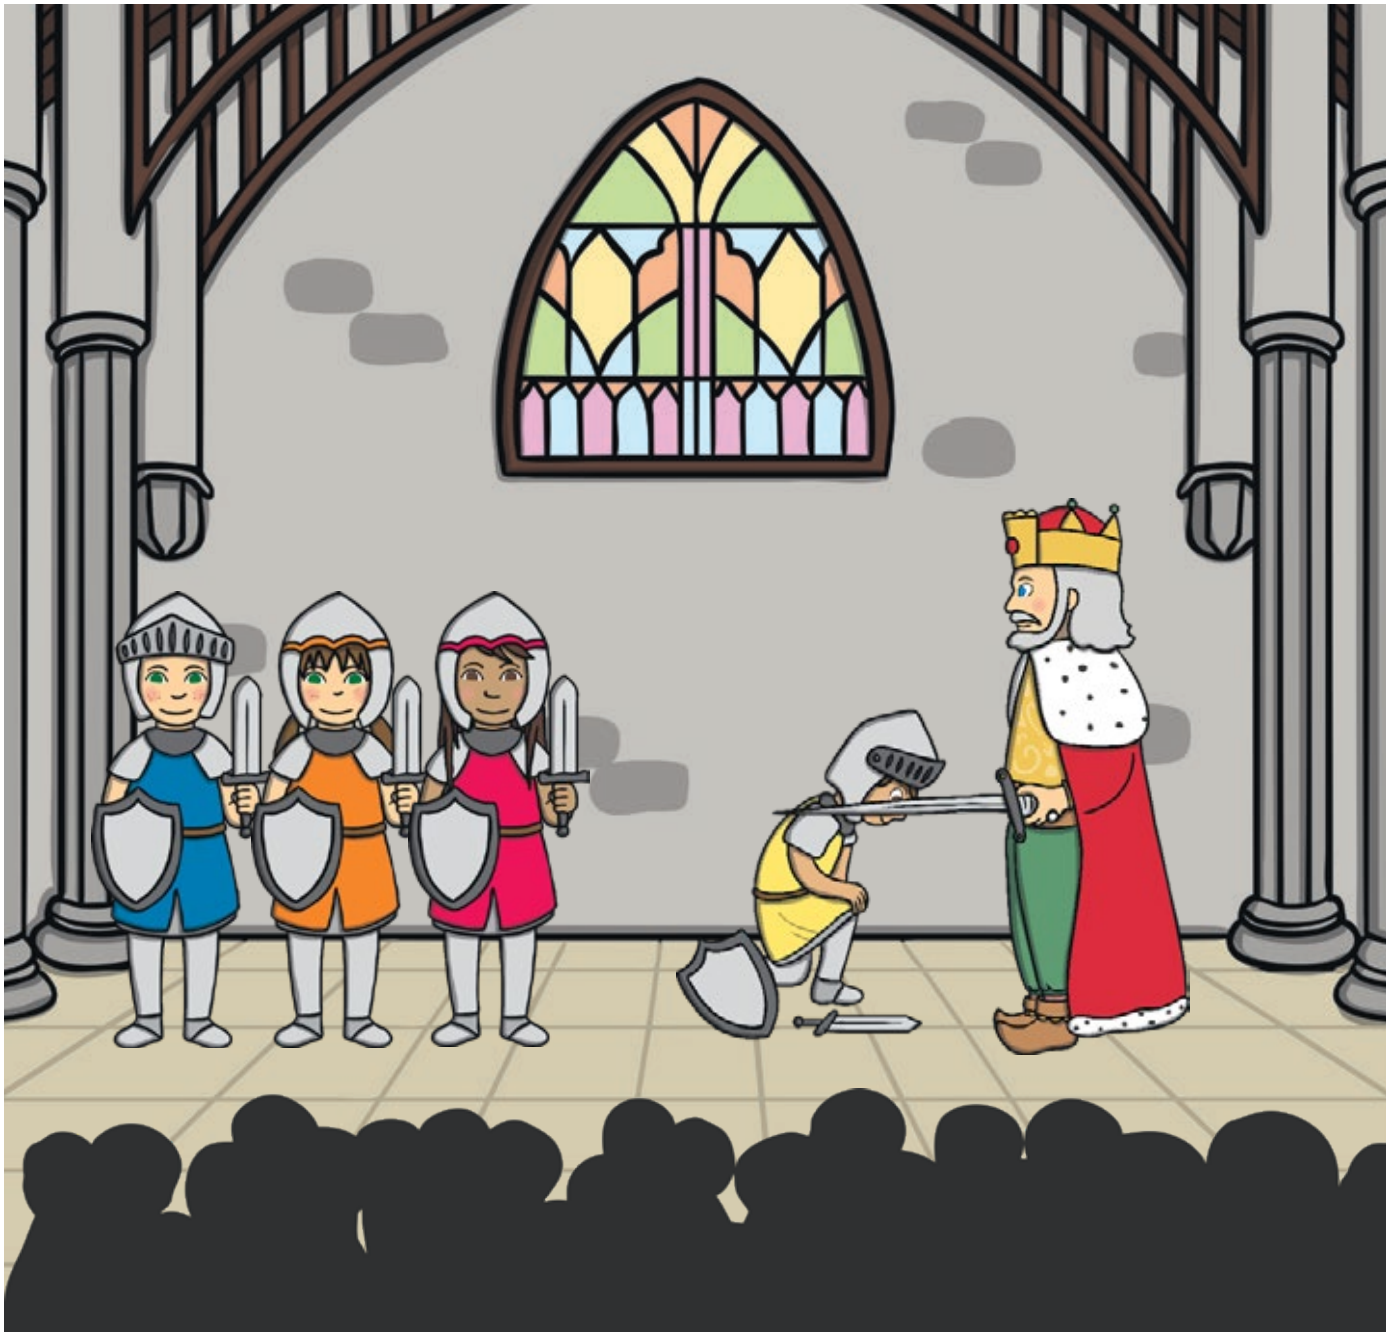

They decided to visit their new neighbours, Martha and Tom, who were playing Knights and Dragons. “I would just love to go on a real knights’ quest”. said Tom. “They always sound so exciting!”

Kit and Sam looked at one another, then down at the magic book.

“Maybe we could all go on a real knight’s adventure together.” said Kit.

“I’ll pack my knapsack!” said Tom excitedly.

Kit, Sam, Martha and Tom arrived at a big castle and went to a large room, filled with people. They were asked to kneel as the king tapped them on the shoulders with his sword.

“I’m a real knight!” whooped Tom.

Once all the new knights were up off their knees, the king began to speak.

“My son has been kidnapped by the most dreadful dragon,” announced the king. “Your first quest as knights is to rescue him.”

The knights all knew exactly what to do and the young prince was rescued in no time!

“What a crazy day!” laughed Martha. “It will be a long time until I’m ready for another one like that.”
