Let's Rock Out

A 'Let's Read Together!' Book

When Kit, Sam, Tess and Jake found out that the royals would be visiting their school, they got a band together. They worked very hard at a new song.

With their teachers helping them, they gained a spot performing in the royal concert.

Before the concert, they were a little nervy, but they played so well that the crowd stood up and cheered!

After the royals had seen the band perform, they asked them if they would play at a birthday party on Friday.

The band worked hard practising the royals favourite songs and were ready to perform on Friday.

At the party, they played well. The crowd were all singing along to the new songs!
