

Mrs Madden's Class News

Friday 29th November 2024

This week...

... has flown by!

The children have continued to be superstars practising for 'The Big, Little Nativity'. Miss Whittingham has been very impressed with our singing talents this week.

The children are working so hard in Phonics, their effort and confidence to segment and blend sounds together is really beginning to shine. Nursery children are loving all the actions and sounds we've been learning too.

We have sequenced the story of 'The Nativity' and Baby Jesus has been having a lovely time on our home corner! Listening to the children play 'mums and dads' in class is such a joy. They interact, take turns and extend their play beautifully. Well done everyone!

Next week...

We will write our letters to Father Christmas!

Just a reminder to reception parents, please do sign your child's reading diary each time they read their Rhino Readers book/practise their phonics cards. We count up how many times they've read each week and they build up points for a reading certificate – bronze, silver, gold and platinum. The more they read, the more points towards the certificates they receive.

Have a wonderful weekend,

Mrs Madden 😊
